A New Beginning

A NEW BEGINNING is the product of a staff of incredibly gifted individuals. They have spent numerous hours identifying needs, evaluating ideas, designing components, and implementing a creative process that has established a new tradition at Mansfield High School.

Our goal was to capture the essence of the 1991-1992 school year. Our objective was to allow students and staff to collectively share their experiences in the spring before the school year ends, and memories fade. A heightened sense of awareness exists before the seniors graduate in June. Many relationships were nutured, blossomed, but as time passes, will fade. I feel, by preserving these memories for all time, that A NEW BEGINNING will continue to enrich the lives of all who have experienced the uniqueness of Mansfield High School.

Mansfield High School leaves VIPs from Washington quite impressed

By GAYLE GODDARD-TAYLOR
Sun Chronicle Staff Writer

MANSFIELD – Mansfield High School's "visitors" from Washington, D.C., are gone, but hardly forgotten.

The visitors, representatives chosen by the federal Department of Education to verify Mansfield's application as a high school of excellence, spent two days at the school earlier this week speaking with parents, teachers and students.

The results of their visit will be published in two separate reports to officials in Washington, but those reports will never be seen locally.

They will, however, be used to determine if Mansfield High School – already one of 270 finalists culled from a group of 480 nationwide – will emerge an award-winner.

According to high school assistant principal Kathleen Flaherty, Mansfield should know how it fared by May 30.

"I'd be really disappointed if we didn't win," Flaherty said Thursday.

"It seems we're in really good shape."

Flaherty said the team went through the school in two days, sitting in on classes and holding a series of meetings with parents, teachers, students and counselors.

"It was a wonderful two days," she said. "They felt our application was accurate, and that some of our accomplishments were understated."

'I'd be really disappointed if we didn't win.'

— Assistant Principal Kathleen Flaherty

Flaherty said the team commented on an English class, where students were performing "Hamlet" soliloquies and the team teaching in another classroom by an English teacher and a special-education teacher.

Flaherty said the team also reported anecdotes, recalling the student who had moved to town three months before and ran down the corridor to tell them how much he liked the school, to the two graduate students who returned just to talk to the visitors.

Superintendent Richard Warren added his praise at this week's school committee meeting, saying the message to the community is that the investment made by those at the high school is paying off.

Mansfield submitted its 33-page application, the result of a massive team effort by high school staff, students and administrators, last November.

Dear Members of the Class of 1992:

As I reflect upon this past schoool year, my mind is filled with fond memories. Further, I wish each of you the very best in the future and as the years pass and you look back upon your high school experience, I hope all of your memories of Mansfield High School are pleasant.

Farewell to all...
but let us never say goodbye
the time that kindly brought us near will soon be memories...
of times we left behind

With pride and joy
with sadness and with hope
we'll share your dreams along the way
as life itself unfolds

Look back not on the sadness
of what failed along the way
what you have learned
has made you strong
to fight another day
"Be happy"

Yes!
.500
4 - 4

From the 99 degree heat at the Stoughton meet to the bitter, rock cold of the South Shore Championship Meet, the Cross Country team was put to the test again and again. Could our invisible glue hold us together? Could our concept of "team dynamics" still prevail? Could we endure the rigors of the Hockomock League competition week after week? The overwhelming answer is yes, we did. We gave the good effort; we fought the good fight. For the first time in the history of the Cross Country team, we went four for eight, for our first .500 season.

Field Hockey

Back Row: Sue Patchett, Lori Kitchen, Elizabeth Phillips, Karen Gula, Julie Alleruzzo, Tammi Jagelski, Darny Garneau, Coach Hayward. Middle Row: Man. Having only four seniors, the Mansfield High School Varsity Field Hockey team was not expected to have a successful season. With the help of many talented Juniors and Sophomores, the field hockey team shocked everyone by going their first nine games undefeated. The young team suffered some tough losses but still managed to qualify for the EMass state tournament for the eighth consecutive year. They finished with an excellent record of 10-5-1.

Juniors

Because of the endless stream of decisions that face all Juniors, eleventh grade can easily be equated to one-hundred and eighty days of hell. The first Junior decision involves choosing a class schedule. Unlike previous grades, Junior year is flexible, allowing variation in classes, providing a range of possibilities, and ultimately causing waves of uncertainty. In addition to registering for classes, students must choose the type of college they plan to attend. Guidance claims that there are many levels of colleges to accomodate the various levels of students. Although Juniors are not required to specifically choose one college, guidance suggests that every member of the eleventh grade "gets an idea" of what would interest him. Among the other decisions each junior encounters, the prom is the most important. "Who to ask?", "Which song?", "What colors?", "What to wear?" are all questions that weigh heavily on a sixteen year old's mind. Once these life altering decisions are made, a Junior can proceed to enter his Senior year and eventually he can be admitted into the real world.

WATER FOUNTAINS

Back in 1969 when this school was built, it was customary for students and faculty to sip refreshing drinks from water bubblers. However, times have changed! Getting a drink from these coolers is a thing of the past. Today the water fountains of MHS are used for scientific experimentation as well as toxic waste dumping. Daily biology classes record the gradual disintegration of each and every wad of gum in our hall bubblers. Western Civ students have even discovered a chunk of Big League chew which dates back to the time of the Neanderthal Man. Amazing! Looking at the water fountains, one may wonder if he is really looking at the floor of a baseball dugout or if he is looking at the contents of the nasal canal. Who knows!

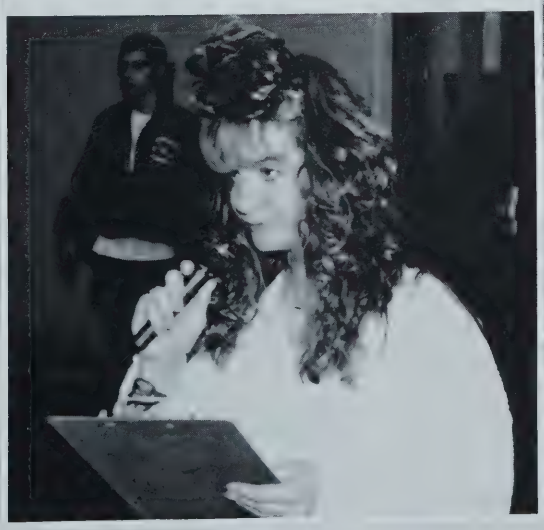
Ah, to be a Junior! To know the future is so near, but still be able to say "I'll make my plans tomorrow." Tomorrow becomes the next day, the next week, until, of course, tomorrow is next year. Being a Junior means becoming a Senior. Becoming a Freshman takes a little effort, but not much. Becoming a Sophomore is simple, as is becoming a Junior. However, once one reaches the Junior level, expectations change. Where the most common question for Freshmen and Sophomores is probably, "So how many years until you get your license?" Juniors are repeatedly faced with the most deadly of questions "What do you plan to do after high school?" Although most are unprepared to seriously answer such a serious question, that's OK. That's what the Junior year is for, to pose the question, to switch one's mentality from short term to long. Then, when June makes us Seniors, we can begin giving answers.



Sophomores

The Sophomore year is a year of transition. Between the traumatic experience of being a Freshman and the hectic life associated with Junior year, Sophomores are able to relax a little and enjoy themselves. Being a Sophomore involves having the best of both worlds. During the second year of high school there are no mandatory state tests and even PSATS are optional. Every sophomore knows his way around the building but is not required to lead swarms of eighth graders on high school tours. Sophomores can also be immature and irresponsible at their own discretion because, after all, they're still young. Finally, during Sophomore year, students can take some enjoyable, low stress, low effort classes because the future is not yet looming overhead. Yes, these are the joys of being a sophomre.

The Passing Zone

The bell rings. "Finally," you think,"English is over". You get out of your seat, head for the door, and cautiously enter The Passing Zone. Expertly you dodge through the streams of oncoming students into the lane which is heading in the right direction. Suddenly, the guy in front of you stops short. CRASH! You and six others combine in a seven-student pile-up. Luckily, nothing is broken and after a multitude of apologies, you proceed with caution to your locker. Only three minutes left to get to chemistry class but (wouldn't you know it) kids are double-parked in front of your locker and you must struggle through a mass of boyfriends, girlfriends, and best friends to get to your books. Eventually you get everything you need and you make your way out of the mass of locker-flowers. Only one and a half minutes to get to class and you make your way down the congested halls which are starting to resemble clogged arteries. You pass someone who should have red flags, flashing lights, and a sign reading "WIDE LOAD" and speed towards chemistry. The bell rings as you walk in the door and you become the target of another "Five Minutes is Adequate Time to Get to Class" lecture. "Yeah right," you think to yourself, "I bet she's never experienced.... The Passing Zone."

The Harsch Winter

One Harsch winter Day during Christmas vacation, I decided to Hunt for bears in the forest. I Tighe-d a scarf around my face and buttoned up my coat before braving the Pierce-ing wind. I went out to the Barnes and got a BB gun, before entering into the Wood behind my house. I traveled through the Rosa bushes, desperately looking for bear tracks. Unfortunately, the only sign of life was a spider Webb which glistened with snow. Feeling like Red Redding Hood, I cautiously crept through the forest. Suddenly, my Keene senses detected something moving nearby. I aimed my gun towards the rustling bushes and almost pulled the trigger, but my friend Terry jumped out in front of me. Terry said, "I've been looking for you all morning! My fingers are numb and Maitoza cold! Can we go home now?" Since I was feeling a little Deasy from the cold, I agreed to return to the house. My expedition was Dunn. My friend and I traipsed down the Lane leading out of the Wood and finally reached my Kitchen where we feasted on cookies and cocoa.

1996

The Freshmen Syndrome affects every teenager during their first year of high school. Its symptoms include: chronic shortness, occasional disorientation in the hallways, incredibly high hair styles, and a vocbulary consisting only of the words "like" and "Huh!?". This syndrome influences Freshmen to travel in packs, and it mysteriously deprives them of their voices whenever anyone asks them a question. These symptoms are often accompanied by over-stressed and "you're-so-queer" looks. The syndrome peaks in early September, when Freshmen achieve their underclassmen status, but it tends to taper off as the school year progresses. Fortunately, this syndrome lasts only ten months and it is easily remedied once June finals are completed.

VACATION

To the students of Mansfield High, "vacation" is the best word ever created. For underclassmen, vacation offers not only a break from classes, but also an opportunity to catch up on late night television. Many students head to the mall or tune in to their favorite soaps during vacation. Others hit the movie theaters to spend some quality time with Julia Roberts and Kevin Costner. Meanwhile, the majority of Seniors and Juniors are sleeping the days away as compensation for their academic efforts. During the break, everyone goes out for lunch at least once to fully enjoy non-cafeteria meals. In any case, vacation provides a relaxing, fun filled week for the entire student body and, God knows, we appreciate it.

TO DRIVE OR NOT TO DRIVE

What an embarassment: being dropped off by my mommy at another social function. Mom leans over to give me a kiss goodbye. "No! Not here! Not in front of everyone!", I think, but it's a little too late. As if being without a license isn't bad enough, I must suffer this public humiliation too. Due to my own inability to drive, mom and dad are aware of my every move. I have friends who drive but my folks are suspicious of anything that doesn't involve parental transportation. It just isn't cool being dropped off at a party by my mother. To me, it's kind of an unspeakable shame and it's not exactly the way to become popular either. How can anyone who waits three hours for a ride home be cool? Answer: Not very!

Marching Band

For the Mansfield High School Marching Band, The 1992 Band season was one of excitement and growth. As a young group, with most of its members still underclassmen, the band took a completely different approach to competition. Setting a new standard, the band performed selections from the musical Fiddler on the Roof in full costume. With the horn players dressed as Russians, and the color guard and drummers portraying poor villagers, the band marched its way through an excellent season, finishing with a silver at finals. The drum line, one of the many highlights of the season, earned best drum line twice during the season, providing strong support for the band. BJ Grudinskas, in his second year as drum major, earned best drum major twice, successfully leading the band through the season and preparing it for '92.

Choir Activities

The Concert Choir patiently waits for the excited audience to quiet down before they can begin their night of excellent Christmas entertainment.

The night could never be complete without the choir's outstanding rendition of "The Twelve Days of Christmas." The crowd roars with laughter when five members of the tenor section sing the part of "Five Golden Rings."

The Mansfield Concert Choir is not merely a club in which we perform. It is a group where magical friendships begin, grow, and last. On the stage beneath the spotlight, our voices serve as one instrument. We touch upon the emotions and hearts of our audience. The feeling between us grows stronger with each passing season...each passing song. We believe in each other...our talents... our performances... our memories. Once again, the choir will change. The seniors will move on, while new voices move in. Yet, the wonderful friendships that we have gained and the beautiful songs that we sang will remain in our hearts forever.

Five members of the cast add to the spirit of the play with their well-developed dance number. This expert routine could not have been perfect without their many after school practices.

Playing a thought provoking game of checkers, Daren Gray and Mark Dubeau await their turn to amuse the audience. These students are given the unique opportunity of experiencing what it is like to be two decrepit old men.

For a few hours, Colleen Degiampetrio becomes a six year old orphan who makes everyone smile with her cuteness. Her part as Bitsy was incredible and many people will remember it for years to come.

As a result of their extensive efforts, Mike Hourigan and Suzanne Dublanica initiated a crowd pleasing performance. These two characters were the cause of an emotional reunion between a group of young orphans and senior citizens.

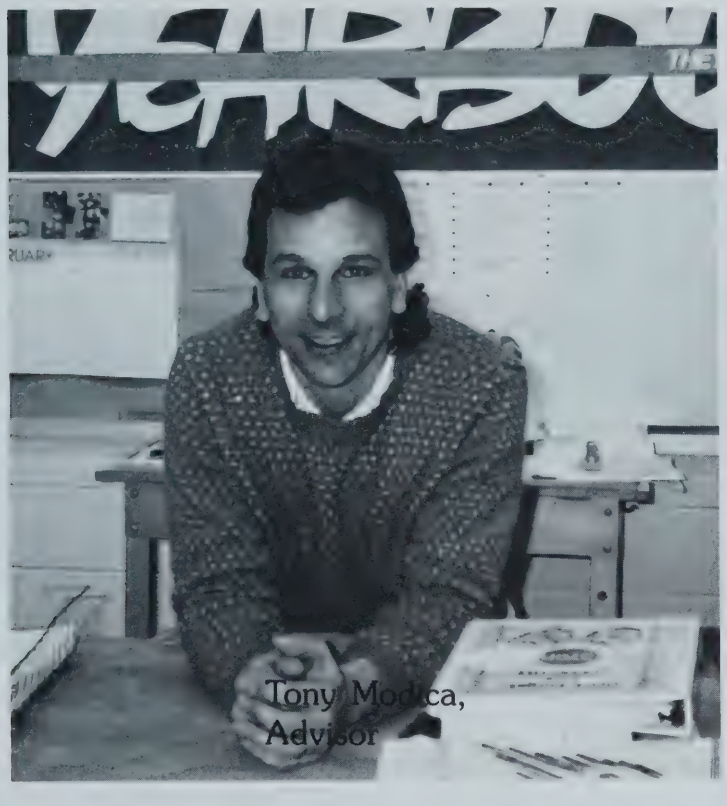
We would also like to thank Shannon, Patrick, Sarah, Mrs. Baptiste, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Kichen, Keri, Sue, Chris, Kerry, Danielle and Christine for their time spent on the YEARBOOK. I would also like to express our thanks to Norval Garnett of Josten's for all his help.

We leave Mansfield High School with many goodbyes to the friends we have made. We will always have the great memories of four awesome years. I wish every member of the Class of '92 the best of luck in everything you set out to accomplish and hope you achieve all your goals.

Best of Luck,

Jason Forget



Tony Modica,
Advisor

Creativity, motivation, and a commitment to excellence were the three ingredients that made this cronicle of the people and events at Mansfield High School during the 1991-1992 school year possible. The yearbook staff was comprised of a core of individuels that greatly enriched and energized my advisory experience. Assuming leadership on the staff were Shannon Burwell, Patrich Hansen, Sarah Mullin, Keri Santsaver, and of course the Editor, Jason Forget. Jason combined his knowledge, experience, and drive to lead this intrepid staff through the many hours it took to bring you "A NEW BEGINNING."

To Jason and the staff, it has been an honor and priviledge working with all of you.

Respectfully,

Anthony Modica

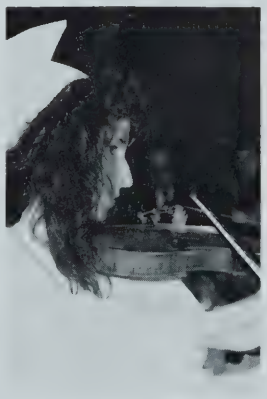
And The Orchestra . . .



Nature's first green is gold,
Her hardest hue to hold.
Her early leaf's a flower;
But only so an hour.
Then leaf subsides to leaf.
So Eden sank to grief,
So dawn goes down to day.
Nothing gold can stay.

--Robert Frost
